

TOPIC:
“It’s Not Always Gall-Stones”

*Treating GB Problems Before
& After Removal*

GALLBLADDER ATTACKS can be both very painful and frightening. It is easy to understand why so many people opt for gallbladder surgery after experiencing even one gallbladder attack. But there are many natural supplements, chinese herbal formulae, acupuncture points, and foods, that can manage gallbladder disease to help prevent both surgery and the discomfort of gallbladder colic.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Deborah Graefer, L.Ac.

Deborah trained at Pacific College of Oriental Medicine in San Diego, CA. She graduated magna cum laude in 1994.

She became interested in gallbladder problems based on her own digestive issues from early childhood. She started her website, www.Gallbladder Attack.com in 2001 to be able to reach more people with what she learned. She has helped thousands all over the world to alleviate symptoms of gallbladder pain.

Her practice is now devoted exclusively to gallbladder and related diseases, She specializes in uncovering the underlying causes, such as hypothyroidism, Hashimoto's, food intolerances, leaky gut and toxicity.

This promises to be a very useful and important seminar, we hope you can join us!
